

Mike Byrne is the Chief Operating Officer for the Michigan Public Service Commission, the state's regulatory agency overseeing energy and telecommunications industries. Mike previously served as Director of the Strategic Operations Division, helping to guide the MPSC's implementation of comprehensive energy reform legislation passed in 2016. Before that, Mike was legislative liaison for the Michigan Agency for Energy and the Public Service Commission, responsible for representing the Agency and Commission before the Legislature and working with stakeholders on energy and telecommunications matters.

Prior to beginning at the MPSC, Mike worked in policy roles in the legislative and executive branches of Michigan state government, where he focused on energy, telecommunications, and appropriations issues.

Mike has a BA in International Relations from Michigan State University's James Madison College.